LILLIAN YOUNG

Double Bass, Composer

Lillian Young is a bassist and composer from Austin, Texas. She earned her bachelor's degree at Boston University, studying music performance with Todd Seeber and composition with Ketty Nez and Martin Amlin. Lillian will begin a master's in bass performance at the University of Southern California in the fall, studying with David Allen Moore. Her previous bass instructors include Tom Van Dyck and David Dawson.

Lillian has attended summer festivals including the Lucerne Festival, New Music on the Point, Music Academy of the West, Boston University Tanglewood Institute, and Curtis Summerfest. She has performed with ALEA III, the Boston University Orchestras, and the Texas All-State Symphony Orchestra.

Her music has been performed by Sound Icon, members of the Lucerne Festival Contemporary Orchestra, Music Academy of the West fellows, Boston University students, and the Westwood High School Symphony. Lillian is a two-time recipient of the Wainwright Prize at Boston University for a song composed about nature.
